Scholarship Essay Statement

Below there are three questions, one each for high school, college, and graduate applicants. Check the box that your essay addresses based on your current standing in school or college.

Qualifying essays should be no more than two typewritten pages.

High school Question:

With a recent return to in-person learning, how are you managing your high school coursework after being in a hybrid/virtual setting for more than a year and how has this helped guide your selection toward a STEM career?

College Question:

If climate change advances at the same pace, the consequences for constituents living in specific regions have been most affected. How has the effect of climate change influenced or enhanced your interest in your STEM field of study?

Graduate Question:

If you could curtail the global warming crises, explain how the use of renewable energy can slow the impacts of climate change. What would an ideal systematic method look like? Include any municipal or governmental involvement that you may deem necessary.
